“We’re extremely pleased to be joining with RochesterWorks! in hosting this year’s career fair at our Greece campus, and we’re honored to have Maggie Brooks as keynote speaker,” said Anne Loria, Director of Rochester Colleges for Bryant & Stratton College. “Bryant & Stratton College and RochesterWorks! prepare our community for today’s global economy, and we each pride ourselves in helping place employees in jobs that meet business and community needs.”

Since becoming Monroe County's fifth County Executive in 2004, Brooks has made strengthening the local economy a top priority. At the start of her administration, she established an Economic Development Strategy Team, convening key community stakeholders to assist her in devising an effective plan to attract new business investment and jobs. She also was instrumental in establishing the County and City partnership with Greater Rochester Enterprise to streamline and strengthen local economic development efforts. Under her leadership, the County has assisted hundreds of companies in their business location and expansion efforts.

About Bryant & Stratton College

Bryant & Stratton College is one of the nation's pioneers in the field of career education. Offering degrees in healthcare, technology, financial, legal and business, Bryant & Stratton College is a Middle States accredited college, providing degrees that prepare students for careers with high employment potential and placing over 90 percent of recent graduates in their chosen or related fields of study.

Middle States is the same organization that accredits the University of Rochester, Rochester Institute of Technology and other four-year schools, giving Bryant & Stratton College students the opportunity to transfer credits to four-year programs.

The College's Professional Skills Center for Training and Development offers lifelong learning opportunities by helping individuals to identify the workplace competencies and technical skills they need for career mobility and success.
